“ Thinking about the sudden and sad loss of our son, Charles, the meanings and mysteries of a life yet to be fulfilled, we'd like to share these warm and comforting words penned by an unknown poet -

*When tomorrow starts without me
Please try to understand
That an angel came and called my name
And took me by the hand*

“ Charles was an amazing person as well as father and stepfather and husband. He did so much for everyone, always making sure everybody was happy. The memories I have with him range from lake days on the boat to going outside and riding bikes around the neighborhood. Charles had such a positive impact on my life as well as the lives of countless others. His passing is extremely sad, but I know he's in a better place now. Although his life was cut short, he did so many amazing things for those around him in that short period of time. I'll miss him forever and I'll never forget the things that he did for me, my siblings, and my mom. Rest easy Charles, we all love you so much.

“ Charles was such a strong person. He gave such great direction to his wife Janelle. For him to be gone is a complete shock. The changes that he made in so many people's lives, or only prove to keep him in their minds until we all meet again. God bless his wife and children.

“ There are too many words and memories to share. My heart is broken right now and I pray that you are at peace. You were a big part of my life for so many years. I'm so thankful we stayed in touch and so glad I spoke to you recently. You were complicated and unpredictable but your heart was as big as the sun. I love you Charles, then, now and forever.
Your kid, Catrina
