“ Hey mom. I did it. At the moment when every sign pointed to nowhere, and even I began to think that maybe it was time I just give up or give in, it happened. I am going back to school for music production. With that it also means that i have been discovered by some important people here who see my talent and have pushed me to have the confidence in my skills, because I am great. I am going to travel the world and not need a cent in my pocket. Now all the "wasted" years have been justified because i always knew it could happen. I miss you so much and want to thank you for always giving me full support. I dedicate my whole lifes work to you. I am going to be allright.

Love, your #1 son
